

AltaSigna goes Personal!

A digital certificate is a very personal thing. You can use your key with the digital certificate to approve documents, contracts and instructions in the electronic format.

While some of the web services let you affix your digital signature on web forms and individual file, it is always in the context of that service. These services provide very little option to sign the documents you create.

The personal version of Altasigna gives you the power and liberty to affix your digital signatures and a visible image of your signature to a pdf file. And the signatures are added in the pdf signature format to enable verification by Adobe or any other pdf reader.

As agreements, contracts and a plethora of other documents need to be signed by all the parties, AltaSigna Personal supports multiple signatures to be affixed on a single document.

The revolutionary idea of drag, drop and sign feature of AltaSigna Personal allows you to choose your unique signature image and place it on any part of the pdf document to sign the document, giving you the personal experience of physically signing a document.

Altasigna personal being a personal signing utility strictly follows the rule of "Sign what you see". The view zone in AltaSigna Personal displays the pdf document and allows you to skim through the document before signing.

AltaSigna Personal has a footprint of less than 250KB making it light enough to be kept in your mail account and downloaded whenever and wherever required.

Menus, settings, pop-ups are the things of the past. AltaSigna Personal offers a simple & elegant single page interface for all the activities.

AltaSigna Personal can sign any document and create a signed file in the standard PKCS #7 format. These signatures can be attached to the document itself or can exist as independent, detached signature files.

The signed documents you create can be verified by any third party verifier or by AltaSigna Personal itself for the integrity of the document and for asserting the authorship of the signatures.

AltaSigna Personal sports an extremely simple web interface and uses your favorite browser. The software comes with an integrated web server component that runs right on your desktop.

AltaSigna Personal also lets you preview most documents before you sign them. These include document formats like Microsoft Word®, Microsoft Excel®, simple text files with ASCII content and PDF files. Thus you are always sure of what you are signing.

AltaSigna Personal supports a folder mode that enables to quickly skim through multiple documents in a folder and sign them as you think fit.

As digital signatures are recognized by law, here is your chance to get rid of truckloads of paper and move towards an all-digital workplace.

AltaSigna Personal works on any Microsoft Windows® platform from Windows 9x all the way to Windows Vista®.

So go ahead and get the maximum out of your digital certificates!
